

WRNewswire

An AALU Washington Report

Monday, 2 October 2017

WRN 17.10.02

The AALU WR Newswire and WR Marketplace are published by AALU and Greenberg Traurig as part of the Essential Wisdom Series, the trusted source of actionable technical and marketplace knowledge for AALU members—the nation’s most advanced life insurance professionals.

Georgia statutes provide that the birth of a child to a testator after the making of a will “in which no provision is made in contemplation of such event shall result in a revocation of the will ....” (OCGA § 53-4-48 (a)). Upholding the application of this statute, the Supreme Court of Georgia affirmed the probate court’s judgment in revoking the testator’s will and found that a general reference to the testator's dependents in the will was insufficient to show that the testator contemplated future-born children, and thus, Georgia law invalidated the will due to the birth of the testator's children after its execution.

View PLR 201735009.

DISCLAIMER

This information is intended solely for information and education and is not intended for use as legal or tax advice. Reference herein to any specific tax or other planning strategy, process, product or service does not constitute promotion, endorsement or recommendation by AALU. Persons should consult with their own legal or tax advisors for specific legal or tax advice.

Copyright © 2017 AALU, All rights reserved.

AALU Member

Our mailing address is:

AALU

11921 Freedom Drive

Suite 1100

Reston, VA 20190